MANAGER COMMENTARY

Market Overview

Following the largest quarterly decline on record in Q1 2020, the S&P 500 and Russell 2000 Value rose 20.5% and 18.9%, respectively during the second quarter. This equity market rally is consistent with the unprecedented monetary and fiscal policy support that went into the economy and with the bottoming of economic activity in late March to early April.

We continue to monitor high frequency data to ascertain the trajectory and sustainability of the ongoing economic recovery. While the recovery continues, the rate of improvement is starting to moderate as pent-up demand is being exhausted and economic agents remain leery of taking on incremental risk. There are still approximately 30 million people on unemployment benefits and the various components of the fiscal stimulus package are set to begin expiring in August. Without an extension of many of these components or additional stimulus added to the economy, it will not be possible to return our economy to its previous level of economic output and sustain risk assets at current valuation levels. Fortunately, monetary officials and members of congress are aware of this fact and will likely move quickly, barring an interruption by the political calendar, to implement additional measures, as necessary.

While the United States has finally reached the point where the Federal Government has become the marginal lender and spender of last resort, we are not alone. Planned stimulus measures across Europe and Asia are likely to dwarf those undertaken during the global financial crisis of 2008/2009. While policy support is very much warranted, investors will be dealing with the intended and unintended consequences of these actions for many years.

Portfolio Positioning

As a result of buys and sells and market action, sector weightings increased in the Consumer Discretionary, Consumer Staples, Health Care, Materials, and Technology sectors and decreased in the Communication Services, Financials, and Industrials sectors. The portfolio is underweight Consumer Staples, Energy, Financials, REITs, Technology, and Utilities. These underweights are offset by overweights in the Communication Services, Consumer Discretionary, Health Care, Industrials, and Materials sectors.

Contributors to Performance

During the quarter, the portfolio experienced positive absolute performance and outperformed the benchmark primarily due to stock selection. Stock selection within Materials, Consumer Staples, Health Care, Communication Services, Energy and Industrials contributed the most to relative performance. Stock selection within Financials and Consumer Discretionary detracted the most from relative returns. The portfolio was also underweight Real Estate and Utilities, which helped relative performance since both sectors lagged the market.

CALCULATION METHODOLOGY. The composite performance results are time-weighted total returns net of commissions and transaction costs. Valuations and returns are expressed in U.S. dollars. Vaughan Nelson consistently values all portfolios each month on a trade date basis. Additional information regarding policies for valuing portfolios, calculating performance, and preparing compliant presentations are available upon request. No composite accounts hold foreign denominated securities. Net-of-fee returns are calculated utilizing the highest annual fee paid by a client in the strategy.
